Communication
Exchange
Speech &
Language Therapy and Consultancy

Children and young people with autism can have difficulty understanding the communication of others and communicating effectively with them brings some unique challenges for those working in education. There are many ways in which you can support them and through a lively mix of teaching methods this course will -

- Explore the range of communication profiles within Autistic Spectrum Conditions via case studies.
- Focus on target setting for communication development.
- Provide an overview and exploration of communication supports, tools and interventions.
- Influence practice in education settings.
- Explore the concept of “Challenging Behaviour vs Challenged Communication”

Who Should Attend?

This training course should be invaluable to those supporting children and young people with autism in a variety of educational settings from primary to further education including:

- Class Teachers
- Specialist ASD Teachers
- Support for Learning Teachers
- Support for Learning Assistants
- Inclusion Officers
- Speech and Language Therapists and Assistants
- Occupational Therapists and Technical Instructors
- Educational Psychologists & Clinical Psychologists

Introducing your tutors:

Jennifer Green – Independent Speech and Language Therapist

Jennifer has been a speech and language therapist for over 14 years and is the director of “Communication Exchange” which provides speech and language therapy and consultancy. She has worked for many educational authorities as an employee of the NHS and of the national charity, Scottish Autism. Her roles as a therapist have varied hugely, from working as a community therapist to being seconded to set up pre-school outreach service to support inclusive communication practices within education, to being part of an early, integrated diagnostic team for complex communication disorders, to serving on the school management team of New Struan Residential School.

Jim Taylor – Consultant in Autism

Jim is the director of “knows autism” and an experienced professional in Autism having worked in the field for over 35 years. Currently an Independent Consultant in Autism, he was formerly Director of Education, Scottish Autism, his remit included New Struan House School, A Centre for Autism. Jim is currently involved in a number of new projects around the UK and Ireland, he is the Chair of the NAS Accreditation Standards Body, serves on a number of UK-wide strategy groups and a Board member of Nordoff Robbins Music Therapy Scotland.
