EATING & NUTRITIONAL CARE FOR OLDER PEOPLE WITH DEMENTIA

A One Day Conference

Tuesday 19th May 2015, Glasgow

Knowledge updates, expert speakers, practical advice & networking opportunities

Nutrition can influence our risk of developing dementia as well as our chances of “living well” with dementia. With the loss of memory and problems with judgements dementia patients often experience problems with eating, drinking and maintaining adequate nutritional intake.

This conference is for all those working in health and social care settings who have responsibilities for the care and nutrition of older people with dementia.

The conference brings together a line up of expert speakers who will increase your knowledge and understanding in this area, explore interventions, guidelines and share best practice on how we can improve the food intake and nutritional status of older people with dementia.
