Supporting Autistic Children and Young People Displaying Problematic or Harmful Sexual Behaviour

Tuesday 14th November 2023 | 1.30pm – 4.30pm, Glasgow | £99 + vat

PROGRAMME OUTLINE

This course will provide you with a better understanding and overview of the complexities of harmful and problematic sexual behaviour, displayed by autistic children and young people, highlighting a theme of overrepresentation. We will explore this via a continuum of behaviour and highlight the practical approaches and interventions required at differing stages of escalation, considering the need for a child-centred, individualised response.

THE LEARNING OUTCOMES WILL BE:

- An understanding of supporting autistic children and young people displaying problematic or harmful sexual behaviour
- Increased knowledge in providing interventions and assessments
- An understanding of sensory and communication needs
- An understanding of aspects of vulnerability to consider within this group

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

A “MUST” attend course for all professionals working with & supporting autistic children and young people, particularly professionals working in education, social care, and health settings.

“An extremely eye-opening course, with lots of helpful practical information”

Max Telford, Teacher
